Partner Opportunity, Electronics, London

Leading international IP law firm Finnegan is recruiting a key hire into their Partnership in London. The role will be integral to the ongoing and future development of their European operation.

The firm represents clients across virtually every industry and technology, ensuring each of their attorneys have access to a highly varied and challenging work portfolio matched to their own strengths and interests.

There will be a great deal of direct client work, including litigation support and strategic advisory work, as well as involvement in business development, mentoring and travel overseas.

Ideal candidates will already be a Salaried Partner (or equivalent), although those with a little more or less experience will also be considered.
