

DID YOU KNOW FELLOWS AND ASSOCIATES ARE SO BUSY THEY NEEDED TWO PAGES OF ADVERTS THIS MONTH?

Featured Positions

Biotechnology, Qualified Attorney, London

Help develop and lead the London office of this international practice. Benefit from a great deal of autonomy, a healthy budget and a nice volume of existing work. You will have the flair, discipline, commercial know-how, political awareness and emotional intelligence to succeed in what will be a crucial hire for the firm as well as demonstrating confidence and expertise in your technical field. Enjoy highly competitive remuneration.

Senior Associate, Electronics/Mechanical, London

A role for an overseas agency beast. You already enjoy the variety, range of challenges and scope that an international client portfolio represents. But with plenty of room for advice work, a hands on approach with clients essential and your fair share of oppositions work this role would suit an attorney not wanting to deal with the nuisance of direct clients. The firm is superlative: a modern, slightly Californian, culture that offers something different from the rest of the profession.

Other Opportunities:

Electronics, Qualified, Associate Patent Attorney, London

One of the most respected UK practices with global reach and international profile. Many covet a position with this firm but few are successful in obtaining one. With a list of clients that is both long and impressive and a range of work that is not just drafting and prosecution, the role could be the step up you have been seeking. Attorneys with some experience post qualification will be highly regarded.

Chemistry, Qualified Patent Attorney, Yorkshire

Enjoy a significant existing portfolio of work. Benefit from a clear path for progression towards partnership. This role could suit an attorney not getting the opportunities they deserve elsewhere. Clients are truly impressive including international corporations and cutting edge research institutions.
